

DIFFERENTIATION BETWEEN BACTROCERA DORSALIS & BACTROCERA ZONATA

Both are large brownish flies with long antennae, yellowish legs and largely transparent wings. They resemble wasps.

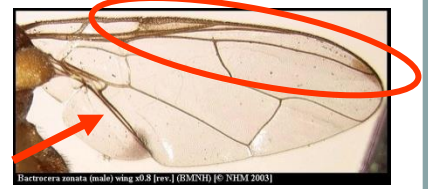

B. dorsalis

Major differences

B. zonata

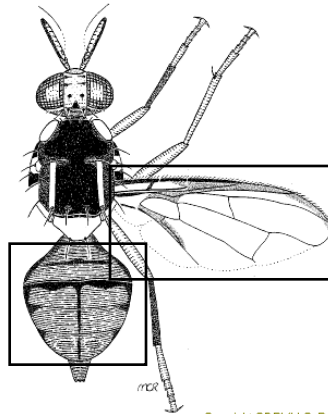

Dark band along margin complete (circled in red)
Dark anal streak present (red arrow)

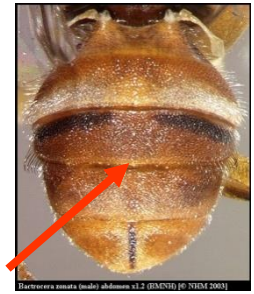

Dark band reduced to spot at beginning and end (circled in red)
Dark anal streak absent (red arrow)

Abdomen with 'T' shaped pattern

Copyright QDPI (M.C. Romig)

Abdomen without 'T' shaped pattern

B. dorsalis

Minor differences

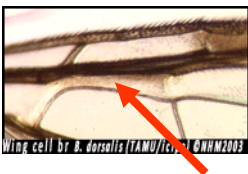

B. zonata

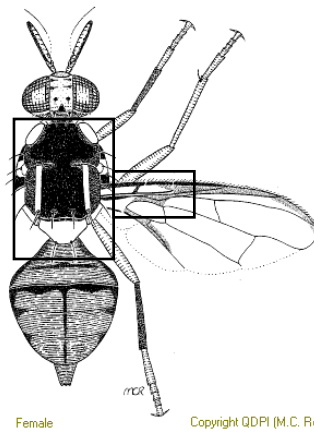

Thorax colour variable but at least partly black

Thorax colour completely brown

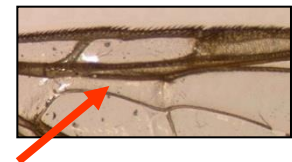

Wing: cell br with small hairs

Female

Copyright QDPI (M.C. Romig)

Wing: cell br without small hairs, transparent